

NYC JOB DEVELOPERS' NETWORKING BREAKFAST

March 27, 2012, 8:30am–10:00am

JobsFirstNYC and Workforce Professionals Training Institute want to recognize the important work of New York City's job developers by hosting a special networking breakfast specifically for people working in a direct service capacity and whose primary job is to work with employers and job seekers.

Please join us on March 27, from 8:30-10:00 a.m. for a meet-and-greet event especially for job development staff.

While there is no cost for this event, space is limited, and you MUST RSVP. We hope to see you there!

We will be joined by guest speaker Andrew Rigie, Executive Vice President of the NY Restaurant Association, along with several employer representatives from the restaurant industry. Mr. Rigie will share his insights on trends and issues in the restaurant industry, as well as advise Job Developers on how best to approach restauranteurs and other food service businesses with respect to their efforts to refer young people to employment. In addition, practitioners will have the opportunity to share with the employers their perceptions of the industry, and both the challenges and opportunities that may exist in terms of making better connections between employers and CBO's.

This event will afford job development staff an opportunity to take advantage of:

- A space for reflection
- A space for creativity and for thinking about new ways to approach the work
- A space for networking and making organizational connections

Our day-to-day work can be very isolating. While we may enjoy engaging the young people we work with, connecting and networking with a larger field of practitioners can be incredibly fulfilling and engaging. Learn about how others do what they do, forge partnerships, build new collegial and personal connections.
